Fischler School of Education and Human Services

Doctor of Education (EdD) Program Outcomes

The Doctor of Education (EdD) is designed to support the mission of the Fischler School of Education and Human Services (provide a link here). The program is designed to prepare adult learners to fulfill their professional and personal academic goals. It provides opportunities to enhance the core knowledge, skills and values essential to competent and ethical practitioners and leaders of organizations in the fields of education, human services and related areas. The learning outcomes of the program are focused on facilitating the transfer of theory into practice in order to produce a new generation of local, national and global leaders who will effect positive changes in a diverse and multicultural society.

Program Learning Outcomes:

Doctor of Education Degree (EdD) graduates will be able to:

- Demonstrate knowledge learned in the program by applying it to real settings. (Knowledge)
- Conduct an independent research investigation that contributes to the general body of knowledge in a specific field or profession. (Research)
- Solve diverse problems using information and skills acquired in the program to create solutions. (Problem solving)
- Make informed decisions based on ethical and legal principles. (Ethics)
- Formulate scholarly arguments supported by academic resources. (Communication)

02/25/2010

Submitted to Dr. Kern 4/19/2010

Submitted to Dr. Maher 4/20/2010